Cyrkl is an innovative, globally awarded Greentech startup and business partner for more than 14 000 companies in the EU (IKEA, SKANSKA, LIDL etc.) with a mission to accelerate the transition to a circular economy through better waste management. In Cyrkl, we see waste as a resource. We are a group of waste management experts and specialists in digital innovations and circular economy. We aim to bring creativity and innovation into the world of waste management. We make it possible to optimize the management of waste, recycled materials and by-products of production by passing on from those who have to those in need. In our freemium digital matching platform, we find new high-value reuse options for materials or waste products for companies. Cyrkl is determined to accelerate the global transition to a circular economy – and play a crucial part in creating a more viable planet by showing the financial and ecological value of materials.

What is our mission?

- Managing and developing the platform Cyrkl.com - The whole solution works similarly to the Uber platform, where the company registers on one hand and submits what it offers or what it is interested in. Thanks to automatic data analytics, it is connected with a business partner, with whom they can already agree on specific requirements. Waste can be traded as well as by-products of production and all types of recycled materials. The team of waste management experts then helps to determine whether the material is suitable and to whom it is optimal to hand it in accordance with the waste legislation.
- Consulting in the transition to Circular waste management – We also help forward-thinking organizations put sustainability and circular economy strategies into action in the area of waste management. We developed a tool called Circular Waste Scan that helps companies with the transition in a highly appreciated way. We analyze the current situation in waste management of the company and then we identify the potential added value that can be derived from that material, product or waste stream. Given our unique platform, our clients can also know how much they can save in costs and CO2. When looking for solutions we always aim to reach a higher position in the waste hierarchy with the goal to extract the maximum practical benefits from products and to generate the minimum amount of waste.
- Systemic Initiatives & PR - Transforming key material flows such as plastic materials, textile, food and other waste streams to demonstrate a circular economy. We show that transforming waste management in global industries from linear into circular is possible and doable in practice, at scale, with incredible speed. We help companies with choosing recycled materials instead of primary resources and providing basic legal consulting.

Based in Prague, we are also having branches in Germany, Poland, Austria, Italy, Russia and Slovakia, we also are active in Spain, France & newly opened branch in Hungary. Further information about the company can be found at www.cyrkl.com/en/.
